My name is John. I would like to write a short article about my aunt Hilda. My aunt Hilda has always been a strong, cheerful woman. She must have been in her early twenties when I first started staying with her on a regular basis. She was a housewife, as most women were in her day. My uncle worked as a salesman. I don't remember much about him, except that I was a little scared of him. Being a salesman, he wasn't around much.

While I was visiting them, I spent almost all of my time following aunt Hilda around. I can still see her brown curly hair and green eyes. She was above average height for a woman and very talkative. For me, aunt Hilda was a source of strength and fun at a time when my own mother was very ill and could not look after me. I think she was and still is wonderful and full of life.

Now my children visit her very often. They spend hours and hours together in her kitchen. They love watching her making cakes. Aunt Hilda loves playing games with them. She teaches them how to play cards, spin coins and make kites out of paper and string. She has a way of speaking to them, as if they were adults. That's why they have so much fun together.
